Coalition organizes: The Bowling Green State University Peace Coalition, in cooperation with Housing Now, will be sponsoring a speech this evening. Donna Warren will speak on homelessness at 7:30 p.m. in 121 West Hall. Following the speech, students will meet to spend the night outside Congressman Gillmor's office to encourage the passage of legislation for solving the problems of the homeless. All are invited to participate.

Interested students with questions should call Beth Rak, secretary of the Peace Coalition at 353-4353.

Gallery sponsors: The BGSU School of Art Gallery, the Art Education Department, Kenwood Elementary School and the Artist-In-Education Program of the Ohio Arts Council will be sponsoring an exhibition of wood sculpture by Robert Gartzka, of the Ohio Arts Council Artist-In-Education program from Oct. 2 to Oct. 20. Gartzka will present a public slide show and lecture at 3 p.m. in 204 Fine Arts Oct. 8. The exhibition will open at 4 p.m. Gallery hours are Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. and 2-5 p.m. on Sundays.

State

Registration begins: The voter registration for the upcoming general election closes on Oct. 10, Secretary of State Sherrod Brown said. County boards will be open until 9 p.m. on Oct. 10.

"If you've changed your name or if you've moved since the last election, you have to update your registration," Brown said.

Animals must go: Debi Foster, 37, of London, Ohio has been ordered by Judge Robert Nichols of the Madison County Common Pleas Court to get rid of all but five of her 19 dogs and 20 cats. Foster has to decide which ones stay by Oct. 26. Last year, five neighbors sued Foster because they said they thought the animals were a nuisance. A permanent injunction issued last week gives her 30 days to comply. Foster said she has been taking in strays since she was a child.

"How can I choose five? Those animals didn't ask to be born, but they have every right to live," she said.

Museum to move: The Massillon (Ohio) Museum will be moving from the home of the city's founder because of a desire to expand. The museum shares the historic building where founder James Duncan lived in the 1800s with the Massillon Public Library. The library wants to expand and because the library owns the building, the Museum is being asked to move.

The Massillon Museum is presently looking at several sites.

Rink evacuated: Carbon monoxide fumes leaking from an ice-making machine forced skaters at the Northland Ice Center in Evendale, Ohio to evacuate Sunday. Six skaters were treated and released at the Bethesda North Hospital.

Dress coded: The Rev. Roger Griesse of the Sacred Heart Church in Dayton, Ohio wants to know why a local diner can refuse to serve patrons and he cannot. Griesse, who gained media attention in July because he refused Communion to a man wearing shorts, said dress is important, even at church.

"Most people wouldn't think of dressing casually for a job interview or a dinner at the White House or even a wedding," he said.

Nation

St. Francis blesses: At the Fifth Annual Feast of St. Francis of Assisi at the Cathedral Church of St. John the Divine in New York, 6,000 people congregated to have their pets blessed and to celebrate "the beauty of God's sacred creation." Although mostly dogs were being blessed, birds and elephants were in attendance.

Murder suspect sought by police

by Greg Plagens
city editor

Bowling Green City Police began actively searching Monday night for the man they believe to be responsible for the murder of an 18-year-old Bowling Green woman.

The suspect is described as a white male in his mid-30s with graying hair on the sides. He is about 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs about 270 pounds. His glasses are golden and teardrop-shaped with wire rims and thick lenses. He was last seen wearing a suit and tie and driving a green two-door car with a velour interior.

Chief of Police Galen Ash said he believes the suspect is the same man who reportedly attempted to sexually assault a University student last summer.

Ash said the man called the student after taking her job application from the counter of a local restaurant. He persuaded her to interview in his car where he allegedly made sexual advances. She managed to escape and notify police.

Leslie Renee Keckler, of High Street, was a student at Owens Technical College and was first reported missing last Wednesday by her boyfriend.

This weekend the body was found by two young boys in a ditch along Pargilis Road between King and Oviatt roads, about seven miles northwest of Bowling Green in Middleton Township.

Keckler is believed to have been murdered last Tuesday night.

Abortion dominates Court's term

by James H. Rubin
Associated Press writer

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court begins its new term much where it left off last summer — with the issue of abortion heading the list of closely watched cases.

After a three-month recess, the justices returned to the bench Monday to begin deliberations in a variety of controversial legal and political disputes. None is likely to be more divisive, or a better bellwether of the court's conservative course, than abortion.

The court will hear arguments in three abortion cases, probably in December or January, that will determine whether it will expand the new regulatory power it gave states last July.

Harvard University law professor Laurence Tribe said the July ruling "began, in a very major way, the dismantling of Roe versus Wade," the court's 1973 ruling that established a right to abortion.

"The court may never say Roe versus Wade is overruled, but is likely to say, 'Roe versus Wade ... never heard of it,'" Tribe said.

Officials from Minnesota and Ohio are urging the justices to allow laws requiring young, unmarried girls to get parental consent before having abortions. In the third case, Illinois is seeking stricter control over clinics that perform the great majority of abortions.

State officials are not asking the court to overturn Roe vs. Wade, which legalized abortions nationwide.

The Bush administration, which urged the court last term to reverse the 1973 ruling, is taking a lower profile this time.

The Justice Department will not participate in oral arguments in any of the three cases, although it is expected to submit a legal brief supporting Minnesota's parental consent law.

The abortion debate in America was recast dramatically by the court's July 3 ruling in a Missouri case cutting back abortion rights and letting states make

Lt. Gov. opts to withdraw

by Robert E. Miller
Associated Press writer

COLUMBUS — Lt. Gov. Paul Leonard said Monday he aspired to the governor's office and believed he could raise money to seek it before finally deciding the price was too high in human terms.

His decision to sit out the 1990 elections doesn't mean he is through with politics, he said.

"This is not to say it's over. It might be over if I were 30 years older, but I'm 46," the former Dayton mayor said.

Leonard repeated earlier comments that he wants to spend more time with his newly acquired family and seek a greater measure of financial security as a private attorney or in some other business.

His term expires in January 1991, along with that of Democratic Gov. Richard Celeste, who is barred by law from seeking a third straight term. Ohio's governor and lieutenant governor are elected jointly on the same ticket.

Celeste's first lieutenant governor, Myrl Shoemaker, died in office. Leonard, chosen for Celeste's second-term ticket in 1986, has helped Celeste in economic development, local government and other matters.

But like most of his predecessors in an office that has been a political dead end, Leonard rarely shares the public spotlight.

Leonard said despite reports that he may run for attorney general, "the governor's office was the only race I wanted to make ... that's where you can get things done."

He said he raised $60,000 at three fund-raisers before deciding the rigors of a gubernatorial campaign were too great for him and his family. He was married in August to the former Kathy Frounfelker. He has two stepsons, ages 14 and 12.

"I watched Dick Celeste start the day with a breakfast and end up with some kind of political event at night. That's just too much of a price to pay," he said.

If he had decided to run for governor, Leonard said, "I think I would have got my fair share of the money." He said most of the money to be spent in the governor's race is still up for grabs because, so far, no Democrat has been announced as a candidate.

The lieutenant governor otherwise indicated some disenchantment with politics, although insisting it is an honorable profession that young people should consider. "It has changed a lot," he said.

Leonard said campaigns have become almost totally money-oriented and are more bitter and personal. "Money turns me off. Issues get shoved into the background," he said.

Celeste praised Leonard as a talented leader who has made many friends across the state. He said, "All of us in public life with families of our own understand the decision Paul has reached."

Student dies in car wreck

by Wynne Everett

Jennifer Morelan, freshman graphic design major from Waterville, died in a head-on car collision in Whitehouse, Ohio Friday night.

Morelan's car was struck while heading north on Weckerly Road when a southbound car driven by Jeffery Burger of Whitehouse went left of center at a high rate of speed.

Neither driver was wearing a seatbelt and both were pronounced dead at the scene. Police have not yet determined whether alcohol was involved.

Morelan, 18, is survived by her parents, Robert and Phyllis Morelan of Waterville, and sister Bobbie Morelan, a University junior.

Also surviving are grandparents Mearl Morelan and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whitney.

"She really loved her art," Mr. Morelan said. "She enjoyed college and meeting people, and she really loved to draw."

Visitation was Monday, and services will be held today at 11 a.m. at Deck-Hanneman Funeral Home.

Burial will be at Wood County Memory Gardens Inc. The Morelan family requests donations be given to the University art department.

Editorial EditorHugo victims in need of aid

It was tragic enough when residents of Charleston, S.C. were almost all washed and blown away by Hurricane Hugo.

But now, they are drowning in red tape. Aid for victims from the federal government, courtesy of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, has not just been slow in coming — it has been absent.

Instead of bringing in people and resources, as they should be, the FEMA has distributed forms for victims to fill out and return in two weeks.

Are they recommending these people use the paperwork to patch their roofs or eat for dinner in the meantime?

Damage has been estimated at $3 billion or more, and now is the time when this agency should be providing support and care for these victims.

Instead, the FEMA is only reinforcing the stereotype of the government as a heartless, bureaucratic institution.

President George Bush, who oversees the FEMA, has said he is quite satisfied with the speed of the agency's action.

Charleston Mayor Joseph Riley Jr. is accusing the agency of being slow to respond.

However, neither of these men who have the power to do something have taken any control. At such a time of tragedy, their behavior — and that of the FEMA — is inexcusable.

And while political characters continue to point fingers and argue about who is at fault, and while bureaucrats continue to pass out paperwork, Hugo's victims are still waiting...

... and waiting
... and waiting.

Saving lakes
key to future

Lake Erie has made a remarkable recovery in the last 20 years, from a polluted "dead sea" in the late 1960s to a regional mecca for development and recreation. Now comes the hard part.

As reported by Beacon Journal writer Phillip Canuto, toxic waste still plagues the lake. Its removal will be more costly than previous cleanup efforts, and the sources of pollution will be harder to target.

The easy part, once the environmental movement swung the political process into the effort, was in closing off readily identifiable polluters — industries, cities and other sources that dumped major waste loads into streams that flow into the lake. But now, said an official with the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency, "you're looking at hundreds, if not thousands of sources."

Again, the effort will be costly in money, resources, perhaps even in the way we live. But the Midwest depends on the Great Lakes as tool for recovery. And President Bush wants to be the "environmental president." This is a chance to see how serious the talk really is.

A Market Square Hero Dennis Robaugh

Blaze of glory is sometimes best

About two months ago I made a two-hour drive under gray skies to pick up a friend from his last day on the job. It was the kind of day that made you think God was really hacked off at Man.

The wind blew the grass alongside the road until it was bent at a right angle. I couldn't get anything on the radio, so I turned it off — alone with my thoughts, mine the only car drifting along the road with a few semis.

A few hours earlier I had received a phone call from my friend Jim. He couldn't talk long, long distance, you see, and he had no money. He needed someone to pick him up. He had lost his job.

He didn't say much. I had told him he was headed for this, but I guess it didn't get through to him.

When I arrived I found him wrapped in the arms of his woman. The rain had stopped. By now the sky had darkened.

I walked through the drab, dingy halls of his building. The floors were littered with candy wrappers, paper bags and other trash. At the end of the hall I saw a faint glow. It came from the laundry room. Standing outside the laundry room was a short man with matted hair.

He wore a white t-shirt with light brown stains down the front. His jeans were torn, not stylishly as is the fashion. Hollow eyes stared out at me from deep, black sockets. My eyes met his and I quickly looked away. I walked into Jim's room and picked up a few boxes.

I carried them into the hall. The laundry room man still stared. I locked the door.

Jim was still outside trying to explain it all to his girlfriend. She didn't understand. How could she? She hadn't known him very long. She asked him when she could see him again once he got settled somewhere.

She didn't realize she wouldn't.

He had been warned many times that his disregard for the time clock and generally poor attitude would cost him his job. His drinking hadn't helped any, either.

You try to help, but I guess it just doesn't do any good when your efforts do nothing but get you thrown into jail. Not much you can do behind bars.

I placed the last box into the back of my truck. I hadn't talked to Jim yet. He put his arms around her one more time while I slid behind the wheel.

Some people just can't put it together. They have drive and ambition. They take chances and make mistakes. They reach for that ever-elusive, almost mythical gold ring and all they get is a kick in the teeth and a face full of crap.

Jim left home when he was 17 and moved into a small apartment with a woman he worked with. Love is nasty when it turns sour and you find yourself out on the streets two years later with no money and no place to stay.

Still, he struggled and put himself through school for two years with better than decent marks. Damn good grades.

The U.S. Senate was his destination. Still is. He honestly wants to do something to help the ingrates and leeches in this country. And despite it all, he may claw his way up there. Maybe.

He dismisses God with a wave of his hand and a derisive snort. A long pull of whiskey and he blurts out his homage to Henry Miller, "And if there were one, I would meet Him calmly and spit in His face."

She walked away from the truck and Jim crawled into the cab. His eyes were glazed over. He closed his eyes and tears gathered under his eyelids. We drove away wordlessly.

After a few miles he began to talk. His voice seemed detached, empty. I didn't know what to say as he told me the same stories of helplessness.

We rolled into Cleveland at four in the morning. I dropped him off at a friend's house. His spirits seemed to pick up a little.

Space. His one great love. Three years ago the space shuttle Challenger carrying a crew of dreamers burst into flames in a quest to reach the stars.

At least we know they felt no pain. Sometimes all you can pray

Speaker examines European economy

by Matt Mighell

Both East and West Germany will be important to the unification of European economics in future years, according to a West German economist.

Johannes von Thadden, speaking to about 80 students and faculty Monday in Prout Chapel, discussed the role of Germany and its surrounding countries in the European Economic Community.

"Economic unification in 1992 is more a slogan than a real date for change," von Thadden said. "We're looking more into early 2000."

Von Thadden, chief of staff to the executive director of the Association of German Chambers of Industry and Commerce in Bonn, West Germany, is currently touring the Midwest, lecturing at universities in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio.

West Germany is important to the community's initial success because it is a capitalist country, he said. "The EEC plan involves capitalistic countries such as Holland, Luxembourg, and France," von Thadden said.

"Once established, this economic community will spread to a second circle of Scandinavian countries, a third circle of Communist-oriented countries, and a final circle containing the United States and the USSR," he said.

Germany — despite a troubled economy — is second only to the Soviet Union in European trade power and surrounding nations are fearful Germany will dominate trade, he said.

He said Germany could be the crossroads between the East and the West.

Abortion

abortion harder to obtain.

The court, by a 5-4 vote, ruled that states may require doctors to administer tests for determining whether a fetus is capable of surviving outside the womb.

It also ruled that states may ban even privately paid abortions in public hospitals.

Holding the balance of power in that case — and perhaps for the future of abortion rights — is Sandra Day O'Connor, the only female justice in the court's history.

In a separate concurring opinion in July, she said the Missouri regulations do not place an "undue burden" on a woman's right to an abortion. O'Connor said she was not prepared to decide then whether the right established 16 years ago now should be discarded.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justices Anthony Kennedy and Byron White are ready to overturn Roe vs. Wade. Justice Antonin Scalia voted to do so.

Justices Harry Blackmun, William Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens reaffirmed their support of the 1973 holding.

The July ruling has made abortion a hotter issue for the state legislatures, where rejuvenated women's rights activists and anti-abortion forces are taking the battle.

General Assembly session. On Friday, Mikhail Gorbachev is expected in East Berlin to help commemorate 40 years of Communist rule in a country that has already lost more than 100,000 people to the westward exodus this year.

The Soviet Communist Party daily Pravda Monday devoted almost all of its fifth page to promoting the East German anniversary and said not a word about the refugee exodus.

In Bonn, Chancellor Helmut Kohl's chief of staff, Rudolf Seiters, issued a new appeal to East Berlin to agree to the release of refugees at embassies in Prague and Warsaw.

"I think it is in the GDR's (East Germany's) own interest for this problem to be resolved quickly with a follow-up agreement," Seiters said in a radio interview with Nbrddeutsche Rundfunk.

About 7,000 East German refugees, many weeping with joy, pulled into West German train stations early Sunday after East Berlin agreed to let them emigrate.

Some said they jumped aboard the freedom trains as they passed through East Germany, which agreed to the exodus on condition the refugees travel via their homeland. That allowed East Berlin to say the refugees were being "expelled."

East Germany said, however, it acted for "humanitarian" reasons.

Students answer survey

Opposition shown to proposed calendar change

by Lynn Gagel
staff writer

University students oppose a current attempt by Faculty Senate to change the academic calendar, according to the results of an Undergraduate Student Government "phone power" survey conducted last week.

Of 306 students contacted, 274 — 81 percent — were against attending classes on Labor Day in order to have an alternate October holiday.

USG senators spent their two mandatory office hours last week contacting University students from a random list and asking them to register a preference.

The total number of students contacted exceeded USG's goal by 106, USG President Kevin Coughlin said.

Acting on the survey results, the USG General Assembly voted Monday night in favor of a bill authorizing presentation of an amendment at Faculty Senate's meeting this afternoon. The amendment will attempt to strike Labor Day classes from the proposal.

"With the phone power, it almost says it right there how the students feel," said Mary Zetwick, the senator sponsoring the bill to authorize the amendment. "Student government should represent the students and an amendment would let them (Faculty Senate) know students don't want it."

Senators approved the bill in a unanimous motion.

"The purpose of the bill was to let everyone know the legislature of the student body is representing (the amendment) as well, not just the executive branch," Coughlin said.

Professor awarded prize

by Jeremy Weber
reporter

Wallace DePue is living proof that practice makes perfect.

For the fourth consecutive year, this professor of music composition has received the 1989 American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers Award.

"The award is very prestigious," DePue said. "I've entered (the contest) 18 years and never won anything and now I've won four in a row."

"(I reacted) ecstatically," he said. "I never thought I'd win it the third year, so to win four years in a row is pretty remarkable to me."

The award is presented to about 20 people from several thousand entries received each year by the ASCAP.

He earned the award, which included a $500 prize, on the basis of his original compositions, "Decussate," and "The Toy Canon."

"Decussate," a brass piece, is actually three compositions in one, DePue explained.

"There are two melodies in it that can stand on their own, but they combine to form a third composition," he said.

"The Toy Canon" is a musical canon, which is sung in overlapping parts, DePue said.

"It is representative of all of the major types of canons in one melody," he said. "It is the only work of its type in the music literary world that I know of."

Awards such as this help attract students to the University because students take notice when a professor has works published or when a professor receives an award, DePue noted.

"It helps anybody in other areas to have their works printed, and music is no different," he said. "In fact, it may be more beneficial because University choral groups perform my works in the summer."

DePue also performs his compositions with the DePue Family Musicians, a violin quintet composed of himself and his four sons. The group performs about 50 times a year, singing and playing DePue's works.

"It helps to perform my pieces myself rather than leave it to someone else," he said.

DePue said he plans to continue to enter the competition.

Murder

The autopsy, conducted by the coroner's office Sunday morning, revealed Keckler had been stabbed five times in the back and strangled. Dr. Douglas Hess, Wood County Coroner, said Keckler had not been sexually molested, but further studies are being conducted.

Hess said the body was found fully-clothed in the black and white pinstriped dress she was last seen in by her boyfriend Tuesday night. The body was found face down, half-submerged in water and was reported to have been there several days.

Police are unsure if Keckler was murdered where the body was found.

Keckler was last seen by her boyfriend when she had told him she was meeting a group of people at a local motel for a job interview. However, Ash said officers have been unable to confirm if any companies were interviewing Tuesday night at a local motel.

Ash said the department was aided in the investigation by the Wood County Sheriff's Office and the Bureau of Criminal Investigation.

This murder was the first in the city since the unsolved case of Karen Hirschman on Jan. 6, 1987, he said.

Anyone with further information should call the Bowling Green Police Department, the Wood County Sheriff's Office or Crime Stoppers at 352-0077.

Zips pull plug on Falcons, 38-24

Comeback attempt falls short in first night game

by Andy Woodard
sports writer

Akron's Zips kept trying to turn the lights off at Doyt Perry Field Saturday night, but Bowling Green wouldn't let them.

The Falcons answered three second-half Akron scores with three touchdowns of their own. In the waning minutes of the fourth quarter, BG trailed 31-24 and had the ball.

The game was in BG quarterback Rich Dackin's hands. One errant Dackin pass, though, and the Falcons' party was over.

Zips' safety John Motten intercepted a Dackin pass with two minutes remaining, finally turning out BG's lights in Akron's 38-24 non-conference victory in the first night game at Doyt Perry Field.

A crowd of 25,057 — the fourth largest in BG history — showed up but went away disappointed after the Falcons' 10th non-conference loss in 11 tries since Moe Ankney became head coach in 1986.

Until that interception, though, the Falcons were thinking victory — not defeat.

"We believed we were going to win the game with four minutes to go," Ankney said. "We forced them to punt and had the ball. We were thinking about a two-point conversion and winning the game."

"The loss didn't come from lack of effort. We played hard. It's frustrating to play that hard and fall short," said BG outside linebacker Pat Jackson, who made nine tackles.

The BG defense, which yielded 407 yards — the third time in four games 400-plus yards were given up — forced Akron to punt for only the second time in the second half with a little less than four minutes remaining.

The Falcon offense took over at their own 8-yard line and Dackin threw 14 yards to tight end Kyle Hockman for a first down.

On second down, Motten intercepted Dackin's pass. Two plays later, Akron tailback Doug Lewis capped off a 139-yard rushing night with his second touchdown — a 21-yard scamper.

"I came off 'Dash' (wide receiver Reggie Thornton) and then came back to him. You just can't do that. The defender made a good play," Dackin said of his only interception.

The senior threw three second-half touchdowns — two to wide out Ron Heard and one to Hockman.

Dackin was 28-of-53 for 318 yards overall. His big day helped the Falcons overcome a woeful running attack which netted only 38 yards — the lowest output this season.

Dackin

The rushing total was part of the reason the Falcons couldn't capitalize on four first-half Akron turnovers.

"That was the ball game right there. We had our chances in the first half and didn't take advantage of them," Ankney said.

Safety Dave Bielinski, a redshirt freshman starting in place of Mike Holmes (concussion), intercepted two passes.

Defensive back Ken Burrell recovered a fumble by Lewis at the BG 1-yard line late in the second quarter and also blocked a field goal in the first quarter, which was recovered by Jackson.

On the four series after the turnovers, BG rushed for 15 yards combined, forcing Dackin into long passing situations.

"We couldn't move the ball on the ground," Ankney said.

The game didn't begin like the Falcons would fall short. They took the opening kickoff and marched to the Akron 9-yard line, setting up first-and-goal.

But the offense stalled and Jason Zeller kicked a 22-yard field goal.

Early in the second quarter, Cris Shale had a punt blocked by the Zips' Scott Brown. The ball deflected out of bounds, giving the Zips first-and-goal from the BG 1.

Fullback Bob Singletary scored on the next play and Akron led 7-3 with 9:16 left in second quarter.

The Zips made the score 14-3 on quarterback Mike Johnson's one-yard pass to tight end Mike Orbovich 10 seconds before halftime.

Akron opened up a 21-3 lead early in the third quarter, taking the kickoff and marching 79 yards in 14 plays. Lewis capped the drive from a yard out.

Dackin threw his first touchdown about four minutes later, a 28-yard strike to Heard. After a Bob Dombroski field goal gave Akron a 24-10 lead, Dackin came back and threw a 64-yard scoring pass to Heard.

But Akron wasn't done, going 68 yards in 12 plays with Johnson throwing three yards to wide out Leonard Thomas for a touchdown.

"Our defense seemed to wear down in the second half. I don't know if the size of their offensive line had anything to do with that," Ankney said of Akron's 42-pound advantage against the BG defensive line.

With 4:41 left in the contest, Hockman caught a 3-yard touchdown pass from Dackin, cutting Akron's lead to 31-24.

BG's on-side kick failed and Akron had the ball before punting to the Falcons, who had that one last chance to tie or win until the interception.

"We knew they were going to play hard and not give up," Akron head coach Gerry Faust said. "This team has really improved since the East Carolina game."

Spikers sweep MAC foes

by Matt Schroder
sports writer

Maybe they should be passing out brooms at all home matches. Including conference wins over Kent State and Toledo this weekend, the Bowling Green women's volleyball team has swept its last four contests.

The team hasn't lost a single game since a Sept. 23 victory against Southern Illinois.

The Golden Flashes invaded Anderson Arena on Saturday and were outscored 45-15. It was the eighth straight win for the Falcons, which pushed its record to 10-7 overall and 2-0 in the conference. Kent falls to 10-5, 0-2.

Head coach Denise Van De Walle said she saw some differences between BG and KSU.

"Our ball handling skills were better than theirs today," she said. "They also had trouble with their serve reception, and that makes it hard to run your offense."

Conversely, BG had no problem running its offense as the Falcons had a team hitting percentage of .333. Leading the team in kills were sophomore middle hitters Tammy Schiller and Lisa Mika with 12 apiece.

"We are feeling much more confident now than we were before," Mika said. "Our communication is on a much higher level than it's been in previous matches," she added.

The KSU match also allowed BG to get a monkey off their back. Since the Falcons held a two game advantage over Michigan in a match earlier in the season — only to lose in five games — the team has tended to let down every time they win the first two games of a match.

However, game three against Kent was anything but a letdown, as BG roared to a 15-6 triumph. As a team, the Falcons posted a .419 hitting percentage with 15 kills and only three errors.

Harriers split with Redskins

by Chuck Toil
sports writer

After four straight seasons of losses in dual meets to Miami University, the men's cross country team ran to a 22-37 victory Saturday in Oxford, Ohio.

The last time the men's team defeated the Redskins was a 26-29 decision at home in 1984. In those four losses, they lost by an average of 14 points a meet, which included a 19-36 thumping at BG last season.

"I liked the way we attacked Miami. By the two-and-a-half-mile mark, the race was over," head coach Sid Sink said. "We had a plan and we followed it perfectly."

The attacking style to which Sink referred involved senior Mike McKenna and junior Brian Donnelly. They created a quick pace early which only MU's top runner, Eric Hatch, could match.

Sink was then counting on his middle pack of runners to beat out MU's and secure the victory. The plan worked to perfection.

Although Hatch pulled away to a 19-second first-place finish in a time of 31:39 in the 10,000 meters, McKenna and Donnelly took second and third with times of 31:58 and 32:16.

Then in one of their best group efforts of the season, the middle pack followed and took three of the next four spots to secure the victory.

"Both teams (men and women) have to learn to run together in their meets," Sink said. "That's the biggest thing we have to learn in the next two weeks. Right now, we're running as individuals or pairs, not as a team."

While the men broke their streak of big losses to MU, the women kept their string of close defeats alive to the Redskins with a 25-32 loss in the 5,000 meter run.

In their last three dual meets against the MU, the women have lost by slim margins of five points.

"They followed their plan almost perfectly," Sink said. "They had a little trouble in the middle, and that turned out to be the difference."

The Falcons were led by senior Mary Louise Zurbuch, who took second place despite running her fastest time of the year with a time of 18:16. The Redskins' Sue Augustauskas finished first in 18:07.

"Mary pulled out early in the first mile, running it 20 seconds faster than anytime all year," Sink said. Also running best times of the year were freshman Cheri Triner (18:40) and senior Missy Ellers (18:46), who finished fourth and fifth — giving the Falcons three runners in the top five.

But MU showed why it is one of the better teams in the Mid-American Conference by taking the next four spots and dropping the Falcons to 1-3 in the MAC, 2-4 overall.

Booters' late goal secures deadlock against Marquette

by Mike Drabenstott
sports writer

The soccer team, winless in three of its last four matches, could not outscore their opposition again Saturday in a 1-1 overtime tie against Marquette University in Milwaukee, Wis. BG, which had not scored in its two preceding matches, went until 3:03 remaining in regulation before hitting the back of the net. It ended a Falcon scoring drought which was nearing six hours of game time in length.

With the tie, BG's record moves to 2-2-3 while the Warriors go to 6-2-2.

Falcon head coach Gary Palmisano said the deadlock was a bittersweet outcome.

"You step on the field with the attitude that you're going out there to win," he said. "A tie is not as good as a win, but it's a lot better than losing."

According to Palmisano BG had control of the match, working its offense for 20 shots on goal while allowing 16 Warrior shots, most of which were not part of a sustained attack.

"Their offense was mostly counter attacks," the BG coach said. "They had one thrust at a time and that was it."

One such thrust with 32:22 elapsed in the first half gave the Warriors a 1-0 lead. On a long throw-in, the Falcon defense was out of position and did not mark their players properly, Palmisano said. The result was an inability to clear the ball out of the box and an ensuing scramble in front of the net.

MU's Josh Norman got a good kick at the ball and put it past Falcon keeper Mickey Loescher for the lead.

BG evened the score with its late-second half goal. Loescher punted the ball down the right side, where forward Rob Martella was waiting. Martella passed the ball to junior Brian Drought who had an open shot and beat MU keeper Dave Wolfe for his first goal of the season.

The Falcons had injury problems in the game, losing tri-captain Kyle Royer for the day in the first half. During one sequence of plays, junior Andrew Arthurs and Martella went down at different ends of the field. Both returned, but were not playing at top form.

"The trainer was doing sprints between the two players on the field," Palmisano said. Nonetheless, Palmisano said the team continued to mature and gain experience.

"We've crossed the gammut," he said. "We've handled ourselves well, being down two goals at half (vs. Indiana) and scoring a tying goal with three minutes left (vs. MU) — those things speak highly of the team."

"We have to hold the course and keep working to refine our game," he continued. "Maybe then we can turn some of those ties and close games into wins."

A's to shoot down Jays in playoffs

Mark Hunte-brinker

Commentary

If headlines and highlights are any indication, anyone associated with the American League's representative in the 1989 World Series should be fitted for championship rings before the showdown even commences.

Although the Fall Classic between the American and National leagues ultimately decides a champion, it would only be fitting that the A.L. takes the crown this season — a season in which it has dominated the show-stopping comebacks, milestones and newcomers.

The 42-year-old Nolan Ryan continued to defy age as he struck out his 5,000th batter in July. Frank Robinson brought his Baltimore Orioles back to prominence by winning 87 games after dropping a 107 in 1988. Cito Gaston took over team turmoil in the Toronto Blue Jays and turned them into a force, while inevitably delaying hockey season for portions of Canada.

And the best could be yet to come as the A.L. playoffs — featuring Gaston's Jays and the Oakland Athletics — kick off tonight in the Oakland Alameda Coliseum.

Historically, teams that survive a grueling 162 game season invariably showcase great talent, and this year is no different. But the best team doesn't always win, and this fact has been proven time and time again.

If you're looking for some underlying factors — reasons other than talent why a team holds an edge over another — both Oakland and Toronto are glaring with such characteristics.

For starters, the Athletics are looking to heal the wounds inflicted by the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The underdog Dodgers made Tony LaRussa's club look bad in the 1988 World Series, while the Dodgers left no doubt they were 1988's team of destiny. Kirk Gibson's dramatics in the ninth inning of Game One set the tone for the out-talented Dodgers, a tone the Athletics could never reverse.

Speaking of teams of destiny, Toronto has shown signs of just that. The Blue Jays, rejuvenated after Gaston replaced the controversial Jimmy Williams, won 89 games and are 74-49 under the new manager.

After relinquishing a three game lead to the Kansas City Royals in the 1985 A.L. playoffs, then redefining the word choke in losing their final seven games and in the process the Eastern Division crown to Detroit in 1987, the Jays are salivating for another chance at fame.

While these motivators may or may not come into play, the big name players with big time stats will come to play.

If someone would have told Athletics' manager Tony LaRussa that his team would still be playing in October despite major injuries throughout the season to Wally Weiss, Jose Canseco, and Dennis Eckersley — he probably would have suggested therapy.

But Carney Lansford batted .336, veterans Dave Parker and Rickey Henderson more than pulled their own weight, and Mark McGuire continued his steady movement to superstar status as he hit 33 home runs.

The pitching staff is solidly anchored by 20-game winner

Dave Stewart, along with 19-game winners Mike Moore and Storm Davis. More importantly, Eckersley rebounded to save 33 games and Canseco is back to full-strength as the Athletics shoot for their second-straight A.L. Pennant.

When playing the big name game, however, one can't leave Toronto out of the picture. George Bell, troublemaker turned team leader, led the team in average (.297) and runs batted in (104), while providing many clutch hits down the stretch when Fred McGriff, who led the league in home runs with 36, slumped badly. Veteran Lloyd Moseby led the squad with 24 steals while providing leadership.

The Jays possess a good supporting cast in Kelly Gruber, Tony Fernandez, Mookie Wilson, and Nelson Liriano to help carry portions of the workhorses' load. The pitching staff is led by Dave Stieb, who recorded 17 wins, Tom Henke's 17 saves, and John Cerutti's 3.07 earned run average.

PREDICTION: Both teams have a bitter taste from recent postseason's past, and this should make for an extra-intense series, while posing a situation where the aggressive Athletics should take advantage. The regulars are solid and the pitching staff steady, and the presence of Canseco and Eckersley doesn't hurt either. The Blue Jays could indeed be a team of destiny, but the Athletics just might be good enough to stop the wave before it begins. Oakland in six, but not an easy six by any means.

Golfers finish second

The Bowling Green golf team fell seven shots short in its bid to win the Wright State Fall Invitational, Monday at Cassel Hills Golf Course.

The Falcons' team total of 302 was bettered only by the host team, which toured the par-71 course in a team total of 295, 11 over par. The rest of the field included Xavier in third-place with 314 followed by Ohio Wesleyan (315), Franklin College (316), Dayton (322), Bellarmine (326) and Wittenberg (334).

Junior Tim Goeller carded a two-over, 73, to earn low honors for the Falcons and tie for fourth in the tournament with David Pashko from Wright State. Steve Nelson from Franklin (Ind.) took top individual honors with a two-under, 70.

BG freshman Kyle Henzel had another strong outing shooting at 74, while junior Bill Lehman, playing in his first collegiate tournament, was two shots back of Henzel with a 76. Sophomore Wayne Mueller had a 79 and sophomore Paul Green carded an 82 to round out the Falcon scoring.

BG will be back in action this weekend as they travel to Richmond, Ken. for the Colonel Classic hosted by Eastern Kentucky. The 54-hole tournament will be played Saturday and Sunday, while the women will travel to Ohio State to participate in the Lady Buckeye Invitational.

But there was still some question as to who would get the nod for the Zip contest.

Bielinski

Although Bielinski played well for the Falcons, that isn't always good news. After all, the North Royalton, Ohio native was fourth on the team in tackles out of his free safety position, which means the Akron running backs were getting into the Falcon secondary. "He played well with the two interceptions, but he also made a helluva lot of tackles," Ankney said. "But, I'm not at all surprised he played well. He's a redshirt freshman and he's going to be a good player for us."

ture," Goldstein said. "It's not going to be a quick decision. We'll certainly know by the end of football season."

"We can't focus on their record — if we have that approach it could be a long game," he said.

Turain and Schiller turned in standout performances in the match, with 10 and 11 kills, respectively. Turain's hitting percentage was .529.

Rocket head coach Karen Kelley didn't think her team played up to their potential.
